Determined to make the best of a bad situation, Jake and Matt decide to spend Christmas together. They buy a tree, decorate their apartment, and cook a festive meal. But their holiday cheer is short-lived when they receive a call from their parents. Their flight has been canceled, and they are now stranded in Florida.

Jake and Matt are devastated. They had been looking forward to spending Christmas with their parents, and now their plans are ruined. But instead of wallowing in their disappointment, they decide to make the best of it. They invite their friends over for a Christmas party, and they spend the evening eating, drinking, and playing games.

As the night goes on, Jake and Matt start to realize that Christmas is not about the presents or the decorations. It's about spending time with the people you love. And even though their parents are not there, they are still able to have a wonderful holiday.
