The Haunted Mansion of Natchez

Natchez, Mississippi

Step into the grand mansion of Natchez, where the spirits of a tragic love affair are said to linger. Visitors have reported hearing whispers, footsteps, and even seeing apparitions of the former occupants, who were said to have been murdered within the mansion's walls.

The Lady in Black of Beauvoir

Biloxi, Mississippi

In the historic mansion of Beauvoir, the ghost of a mysterious "Lady in Black" is said to haunt the halls. Believed to be the spirit of Sarah Ellis, the wife of Confederate President Jefferson Davis, she is said to appear in a flowing black gown, mourning the loss of her husband and the Confederacy.

The Rowan Oak Ghost

Oxford, Mississippi

At the former home of William Faulkner, known as Rowan Oak, a mysterious presence lingers. Visitors have reported hearing strange noises, seeing apparitions, and experiencing a sense of unease within the mansion. Some believe it to be the ghost of Faulkner himself, still haunting the halls where he created his literary masterpieces.

The Rust College Ghost

Holly Springs, Mississippi

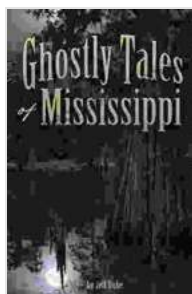

On the campus of Rust College, a chilling tale unfolds. The ghost of a murdered coed, Julia Crisler, is said to roam the halls of the administration building. Students and faculty have reported seeing her apparition, hearing her footsteps, and experiencing a sense of sadness and despair in her presence.

Haunted Lighthouses of the Gulf Coast

Gulf Coast, Mississippi

Along the eerie shores of Mississippi's Gulf Coast, tales of haunted lighthouses abound. The Biloxi Lighthouse is said to be haunted by the ghost of a former lighthouse keeper, while the Pass Christian Lighthouse is rumored to be the site of a tragic love affair that ended in murder. Visitors to these lighthouses have reported hearing strange noises, seeing apparitions, and experiencing a sense of foreboding.
